Lana in Danger of Losing Her Daughter

By JACK FOX
United Press Staff Correspondent

HOLLYWOOD (P)—Lana Turner was in danger of losing her daughter, Cheryl, today even though her shattering performance in the witness stand won the girl a "justifiable homicide" verdict at an inquest in the knife-slaying of Johnny Stompanato.

A juvenile court must determine 14-year-old Cheryl's future at a hearing set for April 24, at which time Lana is expected to make another off-screen appearance.

Two Possible Courses

Judge Allen T. Lynch had two possible courses:

1. He could turn Cheryl over to authorities for criminal prosecution since the inquest's verdict was not an order to the court.
2. He could rule Cheryl a ward of the court and determine whether the girl should be in custody of Lana or Stephen Crane, the girl's father, or be sent to a detention home or some religious or private home for girls.

Dis. Atty. William B. McKesson said Friday night he was not in favor of prosecuting Cheryl after hearing what had been disclosed at the inquest. If he does not prosecute, Cheryl will go free and probably return to Lana.

But McKesson said it was his own opinion that Cheryl would be better off in a good home for girls. He indicated he did not think she should be in the custody of Lana, her grandmother or Crane.

Lana in Seclusion

Asked about a possible reconciliation with Lana Crane said: "Every time Lana has broken up with someone over the last seven years, people start talking about a reconciliation. A lot has happened since we parted."

Lana herself was secluded again in the home where Cheryl plunged a butcher knife into the stomach of her mother's lover on Good Friday.

Quaker Group Ordered Away From A-Tests

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Atomic Energy Commission issued orders today barring from the vicinity of its Pacific proving grounds a small group of Quakers now en route to protest against the imminent nuclear tests.

The orders apply to any unauthorized persons who are U.S. citizens or subject to U.S. jurisdiction. But they were specifically designed, it was learned, to force all a tiny group now on its way to the proving grounds via Honolulu aboard a 30-foot ketch named "The Golden Rule."

The AEC's announcement of the regulations, issued in an action unprecedented in the history of U.S. atomic weapons tests, was such as to indicate possibility that the United States wants to get the 1958 test series over with as quickly as possible.

The orders do not apply to any foreigners because this country cannot make regulations applicable on the high seas to citizens of other countries. If any foreign aircraft or ships should enter the other countries, if any foreign aircraft or ships should enter the 200,000 square mile danger zone they would, however, be warned of the potential hazard and told how to get out in the shortest possible time.

Weather

ARKANSAS — Partly cloudy today and tomorrow; mild days, cool nights.

Some real estate developments are so exclusive nobody is allowed to build a house he can afford.

CIRCUS CARAVAN — Circus people are notoriously self-reliant and when the streets in Frankfurt, Germany, stopped running due to a strike, the management of a touring circus established their own transportation system. They put these lumbering pachyderms to work hauling would-be customers out to the circus lot. Looks like you could have a circus going to the circus.

Navy Solves Underwater Missile Firing

By CHARLES W. CORDRY
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Navy disclosed today that it has solved the problem of launching a Polaris missile from a deeply submerged atomic submarine.

Rear Adm. W.F. Raborn, director of the Polaris program, told a scowpover symposium of the Navy League that a "pop up" launcher fires the missile accurately into the air above the water's surface where rocket engines take over.

Raborn, in an apparent retort to Defense Secretary Neil M. McElroy and the Air Force, described the Polaris as a "wholly new concept" in weapons development that does not infringe on the role of any other military service.

McElroy said earlier this month that it is "not out of bounds as a possibility" that Polaris — firing submarines might be placed under the same command as Air Force strategic bombers.

Air Force Secretary James H. Douglas had said earlier that "new capabilities of one service overlap capabilities of another" and cited the Polaris as a weapon where "wasteful duplication" might be involved unless its production received McElroy's "most careful supervision."

Rear Adm. Roy L. Johnson, director of the Navy's long-range objectives group, told the scowpover symposium that ballistic missiles would be "useless" for the precise and discriminating accuracy required in a limited war.

Barring an all-out war, he said, there would be no substitute for manned aircraft in the pinpoint delivery of both conventional and tactical nuclear weapons.

Raborn made it clear that the Navy shrinks from the idea of any marriage of its Polaris with the Air Force.

Some Snow Pelts East Half of U. S.

By UNITED PRESS

Spring showers, mixed with occasional snow, pelted much of the eastern third of the nation today. The precipitation varied in amount as well as type, ranging from light drizzles to gentle rains and heavy thunderstorms.

The snowfall was confined to higher elevations in Pennsylvania during the night with Brookville, Pa., reporting a two-inch snow cover.

Rains extended from Indiana and Kentucky east through the Ohio Valley and from North Carolina north to southern New York state. The heaviest rainfall amounts Thursday night occurred along the mid-Atlantic coast states with Richmond, Va., recording up to 1.07 inches.

A minor disturbance also brought light rains in a section extending from eastern Kansas and Oklahoma eastward into northern Alabama.

The only other precipitation in the West was in the Rockies where light scattered showers and snow occurred.

Overnight readings ranged from the 20s in the northern Midwest to the 70s in Florida.

To Buy, Not to Buy, Is the Question

By RICHARD A. MONTABA
United Press Staff Correspondent

To buy or not to buy apparently remains pretty much an individual matter despite urging from President Eisenhower to step up purchases as a recession cure.

A United Press check on the man in the street in cities across the nation showed many persons have no intention of increasing their spending. Their answers ranged from a terse "With What?" to "I'm not in need of anything."

A number of persons said they thought the President's advice to "buy, but not indiscriminately" was a sound suggestion for going the economy rolling into high gear. The President made his remarks at a news conference Wednesday.

Still others said they were willing to buy—when prices drop. A typical comment came from Harry Varianian, a Detroit taxi driver, who observed "people have money but they're hanging onto it."

Some support like "Take me" Varianian continued. "Four in our family are working and we all have good sized savings accounts. Why aren't we spending? We just don't need anything right now — we've got 'em and the rest, why should we buy more?"

The other side of the coin was expressed by Joseph J. Gross, executive of the Detroit Area Council of Boy Scouts who said "Mr. Eisenhower is right."

"People should start buying up overstocked merchandise so manufacturers can go back to making more," Gross said. "I'd like to think enough people will start buying things within a few months to get us started when they find out things aren't as bad as they thought and they lose their fear."

Salesman Jack Leaverton of Des Moines said there's been too much recession talk. "There's been so much publicity the people who've got money are afraid to buy and are saving instead," Leaverton said. He added he does not personally plan to expand his buying.

"It won't influence me to buy anything," said Glenna Evans, a Des Moines housewife. "I think it's a good idea, but not for anyone who had to take a reduction in their income."

A Kansas City, Mo., man in the street said he bought everything he needed in the boom year of 1955 and wasn't going to buy anything else until prices come down.

Recall Other Depressions
An Illinois woman also declined to take Eisenhower's advice. "I don't think to much of the President's advice," remarked Mrs. Don Witt of DeKalb, Ill. "I went through the Hoover depression and I'm going to try to save something now in case this recession goes further. I think they (the administration) should have done something about it before now." Then she laughed and added, "I'm a Democrat."

Financial adviser Philip Rafferty, 63, Harvard, Ill., plans "to go ahead in a normal, natural manner in purchasing everything we require. But we won't be spending."

"I have weathered three depressions in years gone by," Rafferty said. "and it is my conclusion that an upper trend can be created through the efforts of the individual."

"I'm quite a supporter of Ike but I got of late exception to his attitude toward a spending spree," said J.M. Augustine, 83, Wheaton, Ill., bank employee. Another bank worker, Joseph J. Boos, 19, Crystal Lake, Ill., thinks "everyone is too scared to buy. I think people will sit on their nest eggs."

"I don't let the recession scare me into not buying in the first place," a Milwaukee man stated. "and I'm not stepping up my buying habits now."

Another Milwaukeean, a 36-year-old man, said he believed "The Commission on Page Two"

Atomic 'Waste' May Turn Out to be Valuable

By JOSEPH L. MYLER
United Press Staff Correspondent

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Atomic Energy Commission has found a way to turn its nastiest liability, deadly radioactive "wastes," into a bonanza.

It is too early to appraise the dollar value of this bonanza, but there are those who believe it will soar to billions annually in years to come. It conceivably could be atomic energy's biggest boon.

By converting the radioactive waste products of atomic fission into powerful tools for medicine, industry, and research, the commission simultaneously has found a safe way of "disposing" of some of the dangerous materials which until now were considered obstacles to development of a big-scale atomic power industry.

News Soft-Pedaled

The commission disclosed this milestone of the atomic era Friday in an announcement composed as though designed for publication, if at all, in the back pages of newspapers.

The immediate news in the announcement was that the commission has cut the price of five once-used radioactive elements to less than 10 per cent of what they had cost originally.

The more significant news was that a new plant built at Oak Ridge, Tenn., for transformation of once-used fission products into precious materials will start operating this summer.

Have Long Life

On the strength of estimated production from this "multicure fission product pilot plant" the commission slashed the price of 137, promethium 147, cerium 144, strontium 90, and technetium 99.

All of these elements are comparatively long-lived products of the nuclear reaction that takes place in atomic bombs, power plants, ship engines and research reactors.

Soviet Space Dog May Come Back to Earth

By UNITED PRESS

Russia's little dead space dog is expected to come back to earth this weekend in a blaze of glory. The expected demise of Sputnik II has already brought "cyclo-witness" accounts of its fall from Louisiana and Australia's "out back" land. But whatever those witnesses saw, it wasn't the dying satellite.

Western observers have sighted the "dog moon" in its diminishing orbit since those reports. Radio Moscow reported it had completed its 2,310th circuit of the earth at 11 a.m. e.s.t. today. The broadcast made no mention of the expected end of the "Muttnik," carrying the body of the first living thing to orbit around the earth.

But American astrophysicists figured its bright streak of death may provide a spectacle for New England.

Fall Expected Saturday

Dr. Luigi Jacchia, of the Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory at Cambridge, Mass., calculated the satellite should enter the burning friction of the earth's atmosphere somewhere over New England about 9 p.m. Saturday. It is already slightly past its originally calculated life of five months.

Its fall will leave space exclusively to the orbits of three U. S. satellites unless the Russians have managed to toss a secret satellite into space since they launched the little dog Lika last Nov. 3.

Russia has not reported to International Geophysical Year headquarters what it learned from the dog during the week it received radio signals from her 1,120-pound space ship.

Made Contribution
The Soviets did announce that Lika had made a "considerable contribution to the study of physical and biological phenomena in conditions of cosmic flight." A Soviet magazine said the dog retained "calm" throughout her flight.

Three pilots and three passengers of a commercial airliner and two military pilots reported seeing a flaming object over Baton Rouge, La., Thursday. The Smithsonian Astrophysical Observatory said Sputnik II was actually over the South Pacific at the time.

Residents of Quilpie, Australia, 340 miles west of Sydney, reported seeing a bright falling object which "exploded twice" as it descended. Mounted police spent hours searching for signs of a falling satellite but Sputnik was later sighted, still in orbit, by an Australian tracking station.

Skill of Sewing Put to Use by Members of Local Club

By Mary Anita Laseter

The Thimble Club of Hope exemplifies that the skill of individual creation with a needle is not a lost art.

Since the club was organized in 1927 by the late Mrs. H. J. Benson, its membership has varied greatly. Only two charter members remain in the group today. They are Mrs. J. W. Cunningham and Mrs. J. W. Seacrest.

Former members of the Thimble Club are scattered from California to Maryland, and never more than 18 have belonged at one time. The present limit of 14 is the number on roll now.

Last summer, the group of ladies dispensed with their meetings for two months. It was the first time in twenty years that the Thimble Club had not met every week. All members of the club were pleased when it became active again, and they resumed their handwork when renewed vigor and enthusiasm.

Each woman brings her own handwork every time the group meets, and there is a constant exchange of patterns and ideas. These sewing sessions are held in the homes of the members as are the birthday luncheons given for those who belong. The luncheon hostesses are determined by drawing names.

Good will toward others is one of the aims of the Thimble Club and explains their participation in such projects as rolling bandages for the Red Cross and making dresses for the Glee Club. Each Christmas they prepare baskets of fruit for shut-ins.

Without a doubt, the largest sewing project of a single member was undertaken by Mrs. Seacrest. For several years she worked on it week after week. The result was a gorgeous cutwork tablecloth.

Winning prizes, ribbons, and compliments for handwork exhibits at fairs is nothing new for these ladies. Plans are under way for judging such exhibits at the Districts Fair in Hope. When such is the case, you can be sure that a great many blue ribbons will be won by members of the Thimble Club of Hope.

Besides the charter members, Mrs. Cunningham and Mrs. Seacrest, others in the Thimble Club are: Mrs. Olin Purdie, Mrs. Tom Duckett, Mrs. Dewey Bader, Mrs. Dorsey Collins, Mrs. Earl White, Mrs. Henry Fowler, Mrs. Charlie Hare, Mrs. Hugh Bearden, Mrs. Carter Sutton, Mrs. A. S. Willis, Mrs. W. C. Gentry, and Mrs. Lee McCullough.

FBI Steps Up Drive Against Racketeers

WASHINGTON (UP)—Justice Department sources said today that a newly-announced stepped-up drive against the nation's 100 top racketeers actually has been under way for some time but was given additional impetus by the Senate Rackets Investigation and the Mafia "crime convention" at Apalachicola, N.Y., last November.

They cautioned, however, that it may be a "long time" before any of the crime leaders are indicted.

Attorney General William F. Rogers announced late Thursday that the government was intensifying a campaign to bring ten criminals to heel through the coordinated efforts of the FBI, Narcotics Bureau agents, and other law-enforcement agencies.

Rogers put the drive under direction of Assistant Attorney General Malcolm Anderson, recently named head of the department's criminal division. He said Anderson's right hand man will be Milton Wessel, New York City lawyer who recently became Anderson's special assistant.

U. S. to Reject Russia's Latest Meet Proposal

WASHINGTON (UP)—U. S. officials said today the United States will reject Russia's latest "mad rush" proposal for an East-West summit meeting.

They said the United States intends to stand by its position that any summit conference must be carefully prepared to insure chances of success.

The Russians put forward a plan Friday calling for a U.S., British, French and Russian ambassadorial meeting in Moscow next Thursday to set only the time, place and composition of a foreign ministers meeting. The foreign ministers session would be held no later than mid-May.

Signed by Gromyko

The note was signed by Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei A. Gromyko.

Under the Russian proposal, the foreign ministers meeting would be followed by a summit conference, regardless of whether the foreign ministers' session was a success or failure.

The Russian plan was spelled out in response to a U.S.-British French proposal of March 31 suggesting an ambassadorial conference in Moscow beginning in the last two weeks of April to determine whether any subsequent summit meeting would "serve a useful purpose."

The West wanted the ambassadors to discuss issues like disarmament, German reunification and the future of East European satellites to decide which subjects should be discussed at a summit conference.

Re's Won't Go Along

If the lower-level talks were successful, the West said, the four foreign ministers then could meet to set a time and a place for a summit conference. The foreign ministers, also, would determine which countries should be represented at the summit.

Russia refused to go along with this procedure. Gromyko declared it "goes without saying" that agreement to hold a summit conference could not be dependent on preliminary talks at a lower level.

The White House promptly branded the Russian counter-proposal "manifestly not an acceptance" of the Western suggestion. A careful study of "implications of the note" was promised by the White House.

Say U.S. Can't Accept

Officials said, however, the United States could not accept the Russian suggestion. They said the Soviet note actually made no advance toward agreement on how to arrange a conference of East-West heads of government.

The United States planned to consult with its North Atlantic Treaty Organization allies quickly to map the next Western move. They expected all the Allies to agree on a rejection.

Times Seem Real Tough for Mohammad

By ARNOLD DIBBLE
United Press Staff Correspondent

JAKARTA (UP)—Times are tough for Mohammad, an elementary school teacher, and his family of four.

Mohammad makes 1,200 rupiahs a month which is worth $110 on the black market. But the rate to the dollar makes little difference to Mohammad. It's what the rupiah will buy that counts and that's where things are really beginning to bind.

As with most West Java, the staple of Mohammad and his family is rice. It takes about four pounds of rice to feed them each day and the cheapest he can get that amount of rice for is 13 rubles.

Inflation a Problem

Inflation in Mohammad's country rose at a slow rate until late last year when it spurred sharply. Then came the anti-Dutch campaign, followed by the revolt in Sumatra.

With the anti-Dutch moves came the takeover of the vast Dutch shipping company K.P.M., which virtually paralyzed all inter-island shipping.

In the past, 3,000-mile semicircle of islands, Java acts like the nozzle of a hose with streams of supplies, shooting off to Sumatra to the northwest, Borneo to the north, the Celebes and the Moluccas to the east, and the Philippines to the south. For manufactured goods and food staples, the outer islands looked to Java. Most of the importing was done there and Java, traditionally an island of traders, collected on export and import duties. Suddenly, it all came to a stop.

Clothes Reveal Few Wintered Too Well

By GAY PAULEY

United Press Women's Editor

NEW YORK (UP) — One trouble with new spring clothes. They display the fact that some of us wintered too well.

Those bulges which dark winter clothes mercifully concealed become painfully revealed. Oh, we've had plenty of warning. If we bothered to check the bathroom scales once a week. But there are dozens of other signs, more subtle, for instance.

You're putting on weight. If a friend comments, "Well! Work (or a winter vacation) certainly agrees with you."

Skimping on Fabric If you decide that chemise you tried on was too tight through the hips because the manufacturer was skimping on fabric.

If you say to yourself, "I really should watch the calories. But I'll wait until next week."

If you blame the hint of a double chin on the passing years instead of passing the plate for seconds.

If you tried on last year's bathing suit and decided some clothes just don't carry over from season to season.

If your friends have stopped complimenting you on your figure. If hubby sends you flowers instead of candy on your birthday.

If you decide the bathroom scales are out of whack. If you're dining out and the waiter suggests fruit compote instead of French pastry for dessert.

If you tell the salesgirl you take size 12 and she says, "Well, I'll just bring out a couple of 14's, as long as you're trying on."

TEXARKANA — Prosecutor Travis Mathis said Thursday he will ask the death penalty for two 18-year-old youths charged with raping a 13-year-old girl in a field near April 1.

The pair was denied bond following a hearing before Circuit Judge Lyle Brown.

Mathis said the state "feels this is a case where the death sentence is justified."

The victim of the attack, who was on the witness stand more than 30 minutes, sobbed throughout the hearing and testified both boys raped her twice despite her attempts to fight them off.

EL DORADO (UP) — The Board of Trustees of the University of Arkansas is scheduled to go into session here Saturday. The Board will meet at 9:30 a. m. in the board chamber of the First National Bank.

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — The Arkansas Highway Commission will appeal to the Arkansas Supreme Court and order by Pulaski Chancery Court that the commission buy the Tondusack Ferry on the Faulkner-Perry county line for $25,000.

The order was signed by Pulaski Chancery Court Judge R. H. Rhee March 18. Judge Rhee ordered the Highway Department to pay $25,000 to Clay Cross of Pendleton, the ferry's operator.

The Highway Department claimed it has already paid part of the cost of the ferry and since the total value of the ferry was only $28,000, $25,000 was too much to pay for the remainder of the cost.

EL DORADO (UP) — When Mrs. Bill Murray and Mrs. Benton Russell both had baby sons in Warner Brown Hospital here 15 months ago, they both said "see you next year," when they left to go home. They didn't know it then, but they weren't kidding.

They were roommates again the other day when Mrs. Murray gave birth to Donald William Murray and John Benson Russell arrived for Mrs. Russell.

PINE BLUFF (UP) — A Federal Housing Administration official predicted Thursday that most of the unemployment in Arkansas will be absorbed by the housing industry.

Wayne Sprague of Little Rock spoke before the Arkansas Home Builders Association.

A large expansion in Pine Bluff industry also is in the near future, Sprague predicted.

LITTLE ROCK (UP) — It may not be a decision affecting the world's history, but to residents of Flippin, a decision the Arkansas Public Service Commission will make April 24 is important.

The PSC must decide if the North Arkansas Telephone Co. will be ordered to install a phone in a flying school office at the Northern Arkansas town's airport.

L. D. Crane of the Crane Flying Service petitioned the Commission recently asking the telephone. The telephone company claims the phone would not pay its way.

There are only two other pay stations in Flippin.

CAMDEN (UP) — A 17-year-old Negro was charged Thursday with aiding two other Negroes in their escape from the Ouachita County Jail March 11.

Sheriff Grover Linebarrier said Lloyd Davis admitted passing back saw blades into cells occupied by James Crawford and Earl Coleman. They were being held on charges of burglary, grand larceny and petit larceny.

Businessmen Agree With Buy Statement

By RICHARD A. MONTABA United Press Staff Correspondent

A spot check of manufacturers by United Press today indicated substantial agreement with President Eisenhower's statement that business should give the public what it wants to stimulate buying.

The President questioned about the recession at his news conference Wednesday said, "when people are being just a little bit disappointed by a few items that have been chucked down their throats."

"I think it would be a very good thing," the President said, "when manufacturers wake up — and I am not going to name names — and begin to give the things we want instead of things they think we want."

There was some speculation the President referred to the automotive industry, but spokesmen for Chrysler, Ford and General Motors in Detroit refused comment.

However, George Romney, president of American Motors Corp., said he agreed with the President's buying habits change.

"I think we're again witnessing the fact consumers in this country are still king," Romney said. "Consumers are rebelling against the size, the large horsepower and the excessive styling changes made each year by many auto manufacturers."

Romney said proof of this is that the sales of Rambler and small foreign cars are mounting while the rest of the auto market is slumping with the recession.

The buying habits of the American consumer are undergoing a revolution," Romney added, and

Student Had No Idea of 'Advantage'

EVANSVILLE, Ind. (UP) — A Purdue University student said today he had simply hoped to make $15 when he bought for $150 the $10,000 home of a widow and her nine children.

Morris Esche said he had no idea of the financial plight of the widow, Mrs. Juanita Malin. "I don't want to take advantage of anyone," he said. Esche said he would talk the situation over with Mrs. Malin and consider selling the home back to her.

Esche's attorney, meanwhile, questioned the legality of the entire transaction on the basis of the widow's statement that she had no previous knowledge of the auction of her home, held to satisfy a $69.60 grocery bill against her name.

Esche, who is married and the father of three himself, said he had made his bid for the property on the outside chance he would be high bidder and could make $15—the 10 per cent to which he would be entitled in a re-sale to the owner.

Mrs. Malin said she and her husband had built the house with their own hands and that she had had no knowledge of the sale, which was held Jan. 3, until she was notified by Esche's attorney Thursday.

"I'd have worked for a year if I'd had to before I'd let them sell it for $150," Mrs. Malin said. "We had to use a tarpaulin to keep the rain and snow off our bed while my husband and I were building the house. Now it's gone."

Mrs. Malin supports seven children and herself on a $200 monthly social security check.

She said the unpaid $69.60 grocery bill had been run up by a married daughter. The grocer said they had been charged to her account, however, and brought suit last year to recover the debt and $4.30 interest. Mrs. Malin failed to appear and lost by default.

An attorney for the grocer then procured a Circuit Court execution order on the house, and it was put up for auction on Jan. 3, 1957.

Mrs. Malin said she had never been told the house was sold, nor had she been informed she could regain the home by paying Esche $150 within a year of the sale.

Deputy Sheriff Victor Ziegler said he made several trips to Mrs. Malin's home last year to tell her she could redeem the property. But she was never home, he said.

Esche's attorney, meanwhile, said the sale would be illegal if Mrs. Malin had not been notified in person or by registered mail of the impending sale.

HANDY PREMIERE SET MEMPHIS, Tenn. (UP) — The movie based on the life of the late composer W. C. Handy will have its Southern premiere here this month with proceeds going to a local memorial fund, "St. Louis Blues," will be shown at a Negro theater April 17 and a white theater April 18.

MAY DAY PARADE OFF BELGRADE, Yugoslavia (UP) — Yugoslavians announced today that it has called off its traditional May Day military parade, and will hold it instead on July 4, the holiday honoring World War II partisan fighters.

"We have got to change our products to keep up with these changes."

The dissenter to the President's remarks was Henry Flaharty of Columbus, Ohio, president of the Columbus Cotton Textile Co., who said "like's statement is not true."

"Manufacturers know what the consumer wants and are giving him exactly that," Flaharty said. "We (manufacturers) spend millions of dollars a year in determining the public's wants and dislikes. We don't spend that money for nothing."

Lana Turner's Career Enters New Stage in 'Peyton Place'

Producer Jerry Wald won Lana's on the contract to play Constance by the simple expedient of quoting his record. At first the actress balked at the prospect of playing the mother of a girl who starts off in the picture as a seventeen-year-old and finishes at twenty. But when Wald reminded her of how he had piloted Joan Crawford through such a shoddy in her career in "Mildred Pierce," which won her an Academy Award, which she dismissed no longer. Incidentally, that picture brought stardom to a then unknown player, Ann Blyth, and it is hoped by Twentieth Century-Fox that Diane Varsi, who essays the role of Lana's daughter in this, her first picture, will experience the same good fortune.

After carefully studying the script, Lana put her foot down on aging suggestions from the studio. "She's not supposed to be pretty or dowdy. She's supposed to be the most attractive woman in that town — just inhibited and frustrated, a woman who holds herself back until one man opens the gates, and then look out!"

"If I'd had my own daughter younger (she's 34 now) she'd be 18 too. The mother of a teenage daughter doesn't have to be martyrs. Lana declared.

In "Peyton Place," which exposes the mores of a small New England town and their inhabitants, Lana Turner co-stars with Hope Lange, Lee Phillips, Lloyd Nolan, Diana Varsi, Arthur Kennedy, Russ Tamblyn, Terry Moore, David Nelson and Harry Cole. The large cast is supported by such screen notables as Betty Field, Mildred Dunnock, and Leon Ames. Mark Robson directed the De Luxe Color drama, partially filmed on location in Camden, Maine.

UTRILLO'S WIDOW TO U.S. MONTE CARLO, Monaco (UP) —Lucile Valore Utrillo, widow of the Parisian painter, Maurice Utrillo, said today she will make her first trip to the United States next month for an exhibition of her own works as well as those of her husband and mother-in-law. The exhibition will open May 12 in New York.

Correspondent Dies
of Heart Attack

WASHINGTON (UP)—Edmond
Perry Moo, 75, former newspaperman and a correspondent, died Monday of a heart attack in Bordeaux, France. His death was reported by his son here.

Noel also was an aviation enthusiast and editor of several aviation publications. He was a credited in Who's Who with making the first known photographs from an airplane in 1910.

He was in France working for an advertising agency at the time of his death. He is survived by his widow, a daughter and two sons.

Noel worked for the United Press as chief correspondent in Tokyo in 1924-25 and later for the news organization in Washington.

A native of St. Louis, he worked in many world capitals as a correspondent for the now-defunct Philadelphia Public Ledger in the 1920s.

Noel was chief of the Federal Air Communications Commission's monitoring section in the early years of World War II.

OUTDOORS with John Alden Knight

The Alcan Highway, that fabulous highway to Alaska, a goodly share of which has as its foundation the perpetual ice which lies under North Canadian and Alaskan tundra, admittedly has its hazards for the motorist. After all, it passes through what formerly was trackless wilderness. Motor trouble or tire failure on that road is a bit more serious than in settled communities.

Until recently, however, hazards were not confined to weather and auto failure. There was another more serious one which could and sometimes did place the unwary traveler in dire straits indeed. Its name was Old Joe.

Joe was an American Bison — a big bull buffalo. He roamed the wilderness with the rest of his herd which used the area through which the Alcan Highway now passes.

He was a grumpy old devil, no doubt boss-man of his group for many years. It was not unreasonable for him to resent the intrusion of man and his machines.

Bulldozers and dirt movers were a bit on the large side for Joe to handle. After all, he weighed only slightly in excess of a ton.
But automobiles, particularly police cruisers, were made to order for him and on these he expressed his resentment.

Joe's method was unique. He would stand in the center of the highway, head lowered and eyes glaring spitefully at an oncoming car. Those not acquainted with him would drive to his general vicinity, stop, and blow the horn.
That would do it, Joe would charge the car full tilt, hurling his body into the car.

He paid no attention to occupants of the car who scrambled out and fled to the safety of the roadside brush. Instead, he concentrated on the car. No, until it was battered beyond all use and, as a rule, on its side, in the ditch, would Joe relent and amble off through the brush to join the herd, mumbling to himself the while with evident satisfaction.

Last reports gave Big Joe a score of two tourist cars and three police cruisers, all demolished beyond hope of repair.

Not having heard anything of his doings for nearly a year, I wrote to my friend, Dr. Frederick C. Lincoln, Assistant Director of U. S. Fish and Wildlife. As luck would have it, one of the Alaskan representatives of Fish and Wildlife was in the Washington Office when my letter arrived. Fred made inquiry.

One of the wardens found Old Joe near the Alcan Highway, lying on his side as though sleeping peacefully. He was not within traces of the remainder of the herd.
Investigation showed no marks of battle or bullet wounds. Evidently, knowing his time was near, he had gone off by himself to lie down, close his eyes in slumber, and pass on to Valhalla.

Admittedly, Big Joe was a nuisance and a dangerous one at that. For a while among the authorities there was talk of his extermination. But he was a colorful character, one who had a mind of his own and who took personal pride in standing up against what he considered to be infringement upon his rights as a buffalo, the boss of the herd. Wherever it may be that buffalo go when the time comes to leave this vale of tears, we wish Old Joe happy for such spiritual automobiles as he may be able to find.

THE STORY: Gunfighters are murdering and terrorizing settlers in Lobo valley almost unopposed. However, Tom Weber, who was notorious as a gun-fighter called Tom Fargo, has resisted them.

Tom Weber saw the light in his cabin while still some distance away, but since he had left it burning, he thought that the raiders had passed him by for this night. When he rode closer to the ranch yard he was startled to see a horse standing nearby.

Tonight he had carried with him his Frontier Model, thrust under the waistband of his trousers, but concealed by his con-dola. It was in his hand in a flash, as he slid from his horse and landed lightly on the ground.

Near the remnants of the barn he came to an abrupt halt. Someone was sitting on the doorstep, silhouetted by the lighted lamp in the room behind. Lily Alderton.

THE SHEPHERD'S STAFF

...and you, too, will need it when you pass through the valley of the shadow. We grope blindly through this world as we trample law and order, and the blessings of an Almighty God. We black-out God and every opportunity to do good. The family, the church, the state will suffer for our sins of omission...our failure to possess the earth. Our goal is not the mark of the high calling which is in Christ Jesus. We know He is the light of the world but we don't care to possess it. It is dark about us because we choose darkness rather than light. Regular attendance at church could make the dark situation light again.
